

Newsletter Report March 2022

All of the newsletter articles for the next edition have now been collected. They are being collated so that they can be sent back to authors as proofs. After this, the newsletter will be sent to an external company to put it together into a completed product. We will be working with Kevin Ashwell who designed the previous newsletter, using much the same design. The quote provided was a maximum of £2000. Unlike the previous edition, the newsletter editor will be responsible for proof reading and liaising with authors.

As it stands, the contents are:

- Obituaries for Paul Hirst, Ieuan Lloyd and Steve Johnson (many thanks to Paul Standish for working on these)
- An article on a PESGB postgraduate conference in 2020
- RSE conference article
- An article on the summer school in 2021
- An article on the RS Peters library
- An article on the philosophy of education reading network
- Short stories and a book advert
- A short piece on the online PESGB conference
- Reports from all of the committees/exec positions, including from the current Chair
- A piece from Paul Standish as the outgoing chair, incoming president

Many thanks to everyone who has contributed a piece, and to everyone for their patience with this. I realise it has been a long time since the last newsletter. Please continue to send anything you would like to be included in the newsletter- I will work to get another one out 12 months after this one to keep some momentum. The email to send contributions to is jane.gatley@gmail.com
